

Legal databases do not link in naturally with Zotero so it is necessary to have a work around if you intending using your Zotero records to help you with referencing cases.

Saving a case: When you download a case it will almost always automatically be saved as a webpage, which is fine if you are simply looking to keep track of your research. However the record will not work with the Oscola referencing plug in.

STEP 2: Click on the Item Type and change it to a Case

STEP 2: At a minimum be sure the following fields are filled out - Case name & Reporter Volume

If you link to your Zotero Library as you are writing, it will now be possible to import records using Oscola.

Importing Oscola into Zotero

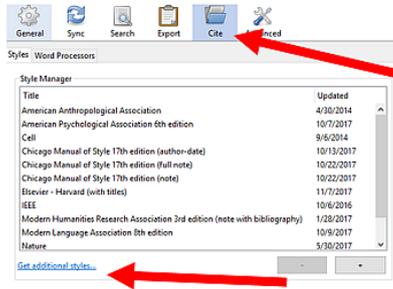

STEP 1:

Click on edit

Select Preferences

STEP 2:

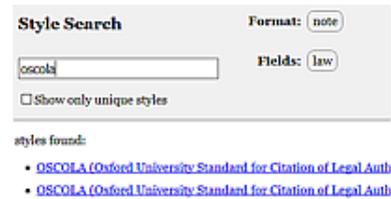

Select Cite

Click on get additional styles

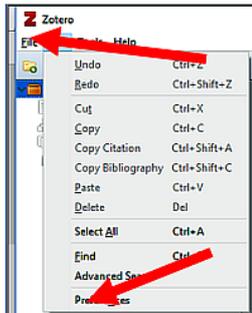

STEP 3:

Choose the preferred Oscola referencing style:

Download the Word plug-in

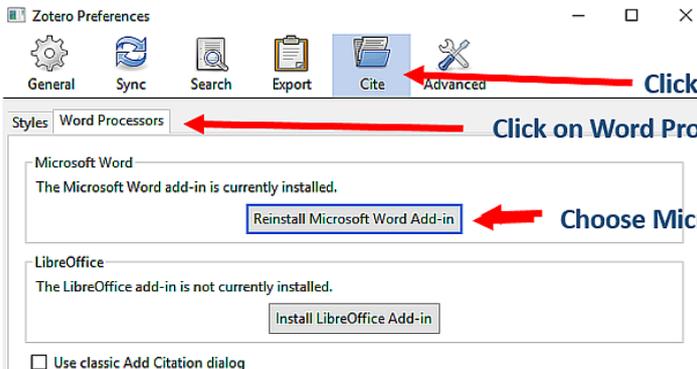

STEP 1:

Click on edit

Select Preferences

STEP 2:
